2. Purpose of Committee www.kent.edu/aqip/ACAA/index.cfm

Purposes of the Office of Accreditation, Assessment and Learning:

The Office of Accreditation, Assessment and Learning has major responsibility for directing the University's assessment process and for coordinating planning and implementation strategies for assessment of major fields of study, general education and academic programs. The office also provides oversight of the university's accreditation process-Academic Quality Improvement Project (AQIP), and serves as the university liaison with the Higher Learning Commission.

Purposes of ACAA Committee:

The purposes of the Advisory Committee for Academic Assessment are to serve the University as the primary advisory body to the Office of Accreditation, Assessment and Learning. Members serve as liaison for assessment ideas and issues to their constituencies while fulfilling their committee responsibilities as university citizens. Members may also provide leadership to academic units as they help foster the implementation of a comprehensive academic assessment plan for the University.
