Making Meaning of May 4 May 4 Visitors Center educational map brochure

You see here the story map on the inside panel of the Kent State University May 4 Visitors Center educational map brochure, which was created by faculty members Carole A. Barbato, Laura L. Davis, and David A. Middleton through in-depth consultation with internal and external scholars, experts, and students and with support of the National Endowment for the Humanities. The background for the story map was created by children's book illustrator Chris Sheban. The background was overlaid by visual communication designer David Middleton with factual details about the Kent State shootings. The painting's tone and the perspective provided to the viewer and the graphics' information and saturated colors work together to convey what happened on May 4, 1970.
