Outwardly friendly, his portly form often was to be seen on Almayer's verandah; his green turban and gold embroidered jacket shone in the front rank of the decorous throng of Malays coming to greet Lingard on his returns from the interior; his salaams were of the lowest and his handshakings of the heartiest when welcoming the old trader.

AF-MS-03, .p7

Yet Nina's life for all her outward composure -- for all the seeming detachment from the things and people surrounding her, was far from quiet in consequence of Mrs Almayer being much too active for the happiness and even safety of the household.

AF-MS-05, .p23

-- How could she make an outward and visible sign of all she felt for the man who had filled her heart with so much joy and so much pride? And in the great tumult of passion, like a flash of lightning came to her the reminiscence of that despised and almost forgotten civilization she had only glanced at in her days of restraint, of sorrow and of anger.

AF-TSR03, .p46

Yet Nina's life for all her outward composure -- for all the seeming detachment from the things and people surrounding her, was far from quiet, in consequence of Mrs.

OIMSPR20, .p349

Lingard
standing outwardly impassible with his eyes fixed on the house felt the recoil of all the fibres of his being before the prayer -- that feeling of condemnation deep seated persuasive and masterful, that illogical impulse of disapproval which is half disgust, half vague fear, that wakes up in our hearts in the presence of anything new or unusual, of anything that is not run into the mould of our own conscience that accursed feeling made up of disdain of anger and of the sense of superior virtue that leaves us deaf, blind contemptuous and stupid before anything which is not like ourselves.

OIMSPR-7, .p94 page of type 72.

There is no remembrance of gesture, of action, of any outward manifestation of life; those are lost in the unshly brilliance or in the remarkably gloom of such moments
We are absorbed in the contemplation of that something, within our bodies, which rejoices or suffers while the body goes on breathing, instinctively runs away or, not less instinctively, fights -- perhaps dies. But death in such a moment is the privilege of the fortunate it is a high and rare favour; a supreme grace.

RESTR21, .p4

From the twist of his threadbare sarong wound tightly on the hips, protruded outwards to the left, the ivory hilt, ringed with six bands of gold, of a weapon that would not have disgraced a ruler.

ROVTSR14, .p271

He went through his routine tasks with outward composure but all the time he was arguing with himself.

ROVTSR15, .p304

The consciousness of that fact accounted perhaps for his sardonic attitude towards himself and outwardly towards those whom he perceived on board the tartane; and .p305 especially towards the lieutenant whom he saw sitting on the deck leaning against the head of the rudder, characteristically aloof from the two other persons on board.

ROVTSR15, .p306

Lieutenant Real was insensible to outward impressions and his absent gaze made nothing of Peyrol.

LJ-MS-05, .p59

I don't mean especially military courage, or civil courage, or any special kind of courage I mean just that general ability to look events men and temptations straight in the face, a readiness unintellectual enough -- goodness knows -- but without a pose, a stiffness, don't you see, ungracious if you like but priceless, an unthinking and blessed stiffness before the outward and inward terrors, before the .p60 might of nature and the seductive corruption of men, invulnerable to the strenght of facts, to the contagion of example, to the pin pricks of ideas.

LJ-MS-05, .p60

This has nothing to do with Jim, directly; only he was outwardly so typical of that good stupid kind we like to feel right and left us in life, of the kind that is not disturbed by the vagaries of intelligence

.p61
and the perversion of -- of, nerves, let us say.

LJ-MS-06, .p129

An outward bound mail boat had come in, that day, and the big dining room was more than half-full of parties of people each with a ninety or a hundred pounds round-
the-world ticket.

LJ-MS-06, .p131

And then I had to think of

LJ-MS-26, .p574

That was his characteristic; he was fundamentally and outwardly abject as other men are markedly of a generous, distinguished, or venerable appearance.

SA-MSK06, .p323

He was speaking
