This card will assist you in determining how to respond to distressed, disruptive or at-risk individuals. On the reverse side, you will find the Tuscarawas Campus Response Guide, which is divided into three categories: situations requiring immediate assistance, situations requiring some assistance and situations you can address and make referrals. You will also find signs and symptoms, examples and action steps for each of these categories.

The colored symbols below designate resources that can be utilized in the following types of situations:

- ●: Requires immediate assistance; imminent risk to self or others
- ▲: Requires assistance; possible risk to self or others
- ★: Address and make referrals; minimal risk to self or others
- ♡: Mental health resources

Urgent Situations Requiring Immediate Assistance

Imminent risk to self or others

Types of signs and symptoms:

- Situation presents an immediate threat of harm to self or others (e.g., individual has a weapon, verbal threats are being made).
- Individual discloses intent to harm others or take own life.
- Multiple indicators of distress are evident (e.g., difficulty focusing, decreased appetite or weight loss, poor class attendance, can't sleep).
- Expressions of hopelessness.
- Emotional reaction out of proportion to situation.
- Issue is impacting more than one area of an individual’s life (e.g., family, academic, social, personal).

Examples:

- Individual attempts or threatens to cause physical harm to others.
- Individual states that if a situation is not resolved appropriately “you will pay for it.”
- Individual threatens immediate danger to self (e.g., threatens to shoot self, take pills, jump off a building).
- Student in the classroom is yelling, does not respond to the instructor’s attempts to de-escalate the situation, and begins to throw a chair.
- Individual is unconscious, unresponsive or tells you that pills were ingested.

What you can do:

- Call 911 when the individual poses an immediate danger to self or others.
- Share documentation with your supervisor or chair/director per departmental protocol.

Possible risk to self or others

Types of signs and symptoms:
