Libraries, museums, archives and other information-centered institutions are organizations that require skilled management and leadership to function well and fulfill their missions. The study of management in these contexts occurs at the intersection of courses focused on specific institution types and courses focused on concepts in management and leadership. Because management and leadership responsibilities exist at all levels of the organization, familiarity with the knowledge and skills within these areas are important for all students.

For further information on this area, please consult the advising sheet for the Management of Information Institutions pathway.
Faculty Supporting the Management and Leadership Area:

Full-Time Faculty
- Miriam Matteson, Ph.D.
- Mary Anne Nichols, M.L.I.S.

Adjunct Faculty
- Iouri P. Bairatchnyi, Ph.D.
- Kim Dority, M.L.I.S.
- John Lewis, Ed.D.
- C. Allen Nichols, M.L.I.S., M.B.A.